Confidence

More than 13,000 women and 22,000 men make up the list of the owners of Swift & Company.

Every state in the Union is represented.

Of this great enrollment more than 10,000 are employees of Swift & Company who own shares in the business.

An additional 13,000 employees are buying shares on deferred payments.

These men and women have confidence in the company's policies, its integrity and purposes. That is why they invest their savings in shares.

Swift & Company has been paying dividends regularly for 34 years. The present rate is 8 per cent.

Swift & Company shares are bought and sold on the Chicago and Boston stock exchanges.

The company itself has no shares for sale.

The shares represent actual, tangible values. There is no water.

Anybody—livestock man, retailer, or consumer—may buy them and thus become a part owner of Swift & Company.

No one man, no one family, owns as much as half of the stock.

This advertisement is for the purpose of acquainting you with the fact that Swift & Company is not a "close corporation," and that any one may participate in the profits—and share the risks and responsibilities—by becoming a shareholder.

PLURAL WIVES ARE UNPOPULAR

MANILA, P. I., May 26.—Practice of polygamy in the Philippine Islands is being reduced through education of girls of the leading families of the outlying districts, according to Frank W. Carpenter, retiring governor of the Department of Mindanao and Sulu.

Mr. Carpenter is here to turn over administration of his office to the Secretary of the Interior who will act through the Bureau of Non-Christian Tribes in accordance with a new territorial law.

The law leaves in effect a treaty under which the Sultan of Sulu renounced all pretensions to temporal sovereignty but gained recognition as ecclesiastical head of the Mohammedan church in the Sulu archipelago. The treaty guarantees to the Sultan and his people "the same religious freedom had by all adherents of all other religious creeds, the practice of which is not in violation of the basic principles of the laws of the United States."

"It is important to note," said Carpenter in one of his messages written as governor "that this includes a limitation as to religious practice which necessarily includes the abandonment of polygamy. There can be no question that it will appear as the relative number of persons of the two sexes reach an approximate natural equality."

Mr. Carpenter said that girls of prominent families in Mindanao and Sulu are being sent to Manila public schools where they are associated with Christian girls and gradually become imbued with the monogamous ideal held by the Christians. The girls are advised to adhere strictly to their own Mohammedan religion as their influence it is said would be destroyed if they abandoned it. When they return to their own people their influence tends to eliminate plural marriages according to Carpenter, who predicted that the practice will be virtually wiped out in the course of a few years.

DAY SET APART FOR FOOLING

Practical Jokes Common to April 1 Have Been Indulged in for Many Generations.

There is much uncertainty respecting the origin of All Fools' day, April 1, when for generations the people of many lands have held it quite permissible to play practical jokes on one another. Some think it had its origin in a miracle play of the middle ages, performed at Easter time. The custom of sending one upon a bootless errand on the first day of April has been supposed to be a travesty on the sending of Annas and Pilate, from Calaphas to Pilate, from Pilate to Herod, and from Herod to Pilate, for these scenes in the Savior's life formed the subject of the miracle play performed at Easter, which usually occurs in the month of April. Others think it more probable that it is a relic of some old, heathen Celtic festival. It is believed that both England and Germany derived the custom from France. In France one thus imposed upon is called "un poisson d'avril" (an April fish). In England such a person is called "an April fool." In Scotland a gawk, gawk is the Scotch for cuckoo, and also signifies a foolish person.

INSISTED ON HAVING CANDY
Liberal Supply of Caramels Necessary to Make Horse Pose for Statue of Lafayette.

Horses can be temperamental at times, as Paul W. Bartlett, the sculptor, found when he sought to induce a high-spirited animal to pose quietly in his West Fourth street studio, the New York Evening Sun says. The sculptor is now working on the statue of Lafayette, which is to be presented to the city of Metz in France by the Knights of Columbus.

An aristocratic as well as an artistic horse was needed for reproduction of Lafayette's mount. After some searching, Mr. Bartlett got in touch with the proper animal and invited him down to the studio. Part of the door and side of the building were removed to get the horse into the studio and when inside he promptly knocked over several plaster casts of considerable value, especially to the artist.

After a preliminary experiment Mr. Bartlett was delighted to find that under the soothing spell of the caramels the wonderfully lined animal would stand contentedly chewing for long periods while the wily sculptor transformed him into a statue so to speak.

FULL HISTORY OF GREAT WAR

WASHINGTON, June 23.—The story of the American Expeditionary Force is told in pictures on the walls of the National Museum here in a permanent exhibit just opened to the public.

Drawn from life in paint, pen and ink or pencil by American artists commissioned and sent to the front for that purpose, the collection of nearly 500 studies detailing almost every phase of life in the army overseas is spread over the walls of half a dozen great well-lighted rooms. It is a tale of stirring action which they disclose.

Among the scenes depicted are ruined French villages made sacred forever to Americans because of American blood freely given to free them from German hands. There are the homely appealing scenes from behind the lines with happy-go-lucky youngsters of Ford's division in billets mixing among the people of France, the very old and the very young people. Here and there are grim reminders of the war, legions in groups of mud-colored dead in wooded enemy trenches, lines which the tide of victory had poured down, the glimpes through a desolation of ruin, a trading, sodden infantry column is moving on ward through a sea of mud as the artist saw it as an endless line of weary gun teams drags forward the batteries to blast the road to triumph.

At one point the artist caught and held for his fellow countrymen the breathless tension of a long outpost, peering through the leafy screen of his enemy toward the enemy lines, his rifle buckled close with fingers clutched about the trigger at another a dash of light from a half-opened door has painted on the screen of night just a hint at a column, tramping on toward battle, just a young face or two in the line, weary, dirty but with jaw-set grim with purpose. Again it is the hospital that has gripped the artist imagination, a twisted, writhing from under the tumbled blankets with agony in every line and over it the steady-eyed surgeon or the merciful figure of an army nurse.

In rooms around the picture display are shown all the countless things with which the army and the navy dwell in the war the guns, the bombs, the uniforms of ally and enemy alike, captured weapons and German war gear of many kinds. These form a striking setting for the epic tale the war artists have pictured, probably the only such record ever assembled for it began with the army and runs on to the departure of the homebound transports to the close.

Messages to Mars.
Dr. Charles P. Steinmetz estimates that a wireless station for the transmission of signals to Mars would cost in the neighborhood of a billion dollars, rather more than any enthusiast would be willing to spend on the remote chance of establishing such communications.
The Sperrycope (Brooklyn) suggests that transmission of signals by light is entirely practicable. It says: "Presupposing that the Martians possess telescopes which are at least half as powerful as our own, our estimate is that some 150 or 200 of the Sperry high intensity searchlights, each over a billion candlepower, would be sufficient for this purpose. If operated together they would appear as a star of the seventh magnitude to the inhabitants of Mars, and a light of such brilliance would, of course, be easily discernible through a telescope in clear weather."
